Thought of the Week

Confused? Start Reading Here!

How do we deal with temptation? What do I do when I know I am making decisions that I know Jesus wouldn't make? How do I ensure my life path rudder is set to the ultimate destination? Is there a way to ensure my life is both fulfilling and awesome? Am I making choices that will lead to my best life possible? These are all great questions and I believe they are questions everybody should be asking whether they believe in Jesus or not! It may surprise you but there is a simple antidote to keep us from those dumb choices we seem to keep making even though we know they are ultimately not good for us. As I wrote last week I have been journaling from the Psalms and this week I made it to Psalms 9 where I read in verse 10

'Those who know your name trust in you, for you, O Lord, do not abandon those who search for you.'

To trust God we need to know God. When we struggle to live how we know God desires us to it's always a trust issue! We don't trust that living God's way is ultimately going to bring us the most joy and fulfillment in life. Instead we trust in our own plans and our own wisdom. I see this most in how people do finances and relationships. The following is a great example which involves both. Having no children Abram is concerned about who he will pass his great wealth onto (his wife Sarai was way past childbearing age). God had promised Abraham that he would be the father of a great nation but instead of trusting God and His plan Abram slept with one of his wife's servant girls. The descendants of this union are still at war with his legitimate offspring the nation of Israel to this very day (4000 years later). How many past wars in our lives are we still fighting that could have been avoided if we just sought God as we are encouraged by this Psalm. If you are confused about the war going on in your head be ignorant no longer. Living God's way is totally reliant on our trust that He always has our best interest at heart. You cannot develop that trust until you truly know him. If you are serious about living the wide-open spacious life that Jesus promises, stop fighting and start seeking.

*God Bless
Ps. Shane*
